From setting Limits To Shaping Practices
Trust and accountability in health care for older people

1.
To trust physicians in taking care of older people, transparency in the criteria, communication and arguments influencing informed consent and delivery of care in medical practice is needed [this thesis].
2.
Trust requires continuous and multifocused work, since it is never finished and needs to be gained and negotiated in an ongoing process of action and interaction at multiple levels [this thesis].
3.
To discuss matters of trust and accountability in medical practice, it is essential not to identify medical with medical technical acts [this thesis].
4.
Value judgments by physicians represent an intrinsic part of the decision-making process for older people [this thesis].
5.
A deliberation-based framework on accountability and trust implies a radical and paradigmatic shift: not controlling, but shaping and building trustworthy practices in health care [this thesis].
6.
Er wordt te veel waarde gehecht aan de motorische ontwikkeling van een kind als voorspeller voor het verloop van zijn schoolcarrière aangezien bijna iedereen leert lopen, maar slechts 24% hoog is opgeleid (Niek Moust (papa) op basis van percentage RIVM).
7.
Het zou goed zijn als in traditioneel patriarchale landen de reactie na een geboorte niet zou zijn 'Hoera, een jongen!' maar 'Hoera, een meisje' of 'Een jongetjes, ook best leuk!
8.
Dat het overbrengen van kennis door middel van onderwijs de basis vormt van elke universitaire opleiding, is meestal niet terug te vinden in het beleid dat ten aanzien van het onderwijzend personeel wordt gevoerd.
9.
Het is pas echt zielig als je geen nootjes mag (Kes Ubachs).
10.
Het aannemen van een poetshulp is de beste beslissing die iemand kan nemen in de laatste fase van zijn of haar promotietraject.
